Hailey City Council to consider Renaming the Rodeo Grounds Property

(Hailey, Idaho) - On November 19 the Hailey City Council will hear a presentation on a proposal to officially adopt the name of the city property commonly referred to as the Rodeo Grounds as Werthheimer Park. The Hailey Historic Preservation Commission and the Parks & Lands Board have both recommended this proposal to honor the donation to the City of Hailey by Leopold Werthheimer at the time of his death in 1913. The property was called Werthheimer Park from that time until fairly recently. The “rodeo grounds” reference was a “working title” used during fundraising efforts by the Parks & Lands Board for the present project. The public is invited to comment on this proposal during the council meeting which begins at 5:30 pm or to send their comments to the mayor and city council if they cannot attend the meeting.
