Mayor Burke Gives State of the City Summary

(Hailey, Idaho) – Mayor Martha Burk gave a State of the City summary in January, 2021. Her remarks emphasize the progress our town has made in the past year, as well as the creativity and community-centric initiatives that continually unfold. Despite an expectation of delay and disruption from the pandemic, Hailey has not been delayed in so many key areas:

- economic growth improved communications
- development has progressed
- the business community has been assisted in facing challenges brought on by the pandemic,
- students continue to be educated
- new parks are under development
- 133 new housing units are under construction
- 44 new lots have been platted
- community participation in city meetings and processes has been fostered through the city’s pivot toward electronic meeting access
- resiliency initiatives have progressed, partnerships have been developed
- strong intergovernmental relationships in a collaborative environment
- our community values have become well-known

The 2021 initiatives of the City of Hailey are rooted in, and will grow from, the following key principles:

1. People first. Whether it be residents, workers or students, we foster an environment in which the safety, wellbeing, hope, dignity and happiness of our community are our first priority.

2. Safety. Through emergency services, infrastructure development and maintenance, safety and the community wellbeing is our mission.

3. Vibrancy. The City of Hailey plans to move out of the huddles caused by the pandemic and move into robust community vibrancy through the coming months.
