

EARTH FEST CELEBRATION 2026

CITY OF HAILEY OUR TOWN, OUR HOME

May — Issue No. 270

Please click here for statement and retraction from May 2026 newsletter. This spring, I join all Idahoans in the urgent need to address drought. The Idaho Department of Water Resources has issued an emergency drought declaration for the entire state, putting water conservation and protecting the health of our watersheds at the forefront of our minds.

We are faced with a dangerously low snowpack; the Big Wood River basin snowpack is currently at 79% of median peak. I am deeply concerned about the low snowpack in our basin because it directly affects water in our rivers and increases our wildfire risk. A low snowpack challenges our community's water resources, puts pressure on irrigation for agriculture, and threatens fish and wildlife that rely on our stream flows. Addressing this issue is critical to protecting our environment, supporting wildfire smart water stewardship, and ensuring long-term resilience and water security for our residents.

Please read below to learn about the programs Hailey is launching to address the drought. Hailey will be taking steps with the lands that the City owns, and we ask our citizens to consider the same. We hope you will do your part and participate in one of our programs.

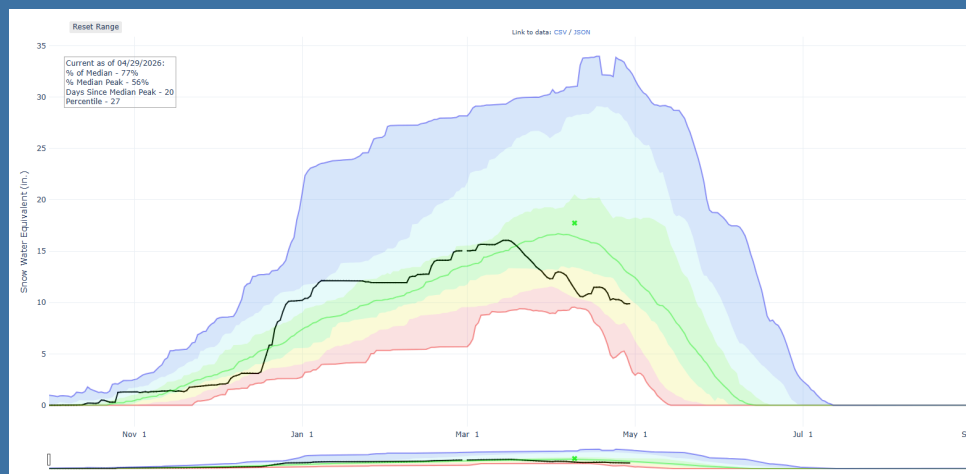

I warmly celebrated Earth Day with our community on April 25th. I must say, this event epitomizes the character and values of our town. I thank all the volunteers, participants and staff who made this happen.

Thoughtfully,

 Mayor Martha Burke

CURRENT DROUGHT

As of April 2026, the Big Wood River Basin is experiencing a significant drought, with snow water equivalent (SWE) peaking in late March, three weeks earlier than normal, at 8.1 inches, which is nearly 5 inches below the median peak.

The black line in the graph above shows the 2026 percent of median SWE for the Big Wood basin. This low snowpack, combined with high temperatures, has prompted a statewide emergency drought declaration. For the City of Hailey, this means continued water conservation efforts as diminished aquifer recharge from low snowmelt threatens both municipal water supply and the flow of the Big Wood River, which is key for local ecology.

WATER CONSERVATION PROGRAMS

More information on these three (3) programs will be available on the City website www.haileycityhall.org on May 8th. The City will host a public workshop at Town Center West (116 S River St) on May 13th from 5:30-6:30PM.

2026 IRRIGATION REDUCTIONS

Customers who desire to participate indicate by selecting to reduce water usage by 20%, 30%, or 40%. If goal is achieved when the total consumed volume is calculated at end of season, customer receives a reduction in their Metered User Fee for the same time period as a credit on their water bill. The fee reduction is calculated as 50% of the goal percentage. If participants don't reach their goal but achieve 50% or more of goal, they receive 25% of the full fee reduction credit.

PERMANENT IRRIGATION REDUCTION

Eligible projects are primarily removal of water intensive plantings, such as turf, and replacement with xeriscape or other non-irrigated, permeable areas. 20% irrigation reduction minimum for eligibility based on preceding 5-year average usage during irrigation season. City may rebate 50% up to $5,000 maximum upon verified completion of project.

IRRIGATION AUDIT

City will provide up to $150 rebate for customers to receive irrigation audit from their preferred licensed contractor. Audit will include calculations of existing irrigation demands and recommendations for reductions. Interested customers will be required to submit a simple preapproval form to the City, and a receipt for the audit.

Holiday Closure
May 25th - Memorial Day

It's almost time for shorts, swimming, and popsicles, which means it's also time for Summer Reading at Hailey Public Library. The theme for this summer's program is Unearth a Story. Sign-ups for kids of all ages begin Tuesday, May 26, and continue throughout the summer. Summer reading officially starts June 3 and wraps up on the 31st of July with our annual celebration honoring readers and their accomplishments. The Summer Reading Program encourages kids and families to keep reading during the school break, when many students experience the "summer slide," a decline in literacy skills. It's also a fun way to stay connected with friends and family. The program is free and will look familiar to returning participants. Parents of babies and toddlers track how many books they read together, elementary-age readers complete sticker charts based on time spent reading, and older students take on a Bingo-style challenge. Participants who reach their goals are entered into a drawing to win prizes, including a Yoto player and AirPods.

In addition to many Unearth a Story reading activities, we'll offer additional Science, Technology, Reading, Engineering, Arts & Math (STREAM) programs all summer. The Hunger Coalition will be back with nutritious free meals, too! Hailey Public Library looks forward to helping kids enjoy a creative, enriching, and book-filled summer.

Friends of the Hailey Public Library Annual E-Bike Raffle

The Friends of the Hailey Public Library kicked off their Annual Bike Raffle in April. Tickets are now available for purchase for a chance to win a stylish Electra Vale Go e-bike from Trailhead Bicycles in Hailey. This "fun" fundraiser supports the Friends' mission to enhance library services and advocate for literacy.

In celebration of National Bike Month, there's no better time to support your community's cultural hub while entering for a chance to roll away on a brand-new electric bike. Raffle tickets are available at the library, and the lucky winner will be drawn on July 4. Since you don't need to be present to win, it's an easy way to promote local literacy and gear up for a summer of cycling.
